

Scene of Coming Battle for Naval Supremacy of the World

The greatest naval battle yet known must be fought within a few days either in the Baltic or the North Sea. The British ships, perhaps only a portion of the whole fleet, but still the greatest fleet ever gathered in the history of the world, received instructions early Wednesday morning to "sink or capture" the naval vessels of Germany.

At that time the British warships were somewhere in the North Sea, but officials, of course, would not say where.

It has been said by experts that the Germans would try to destroy the Russian fleet in the Baltic and leave a way open for landing troops near St. Petersburg before it would venture into the North Sea. That might require the British commander to round Denmark and enter the Baltic.

But the situation was such that the British fleet could hardly fail to meet the Germans. It would be impossible for them to leave the Baltic without being seen. Beyond that they can do much more damage there to Russian cities than they can once they leave it.

Threatical Business Has It's Troubles Now

By PAUL RIALTO

(Written for the United Press)

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—It is agreed on Broadway that General Sherman must have been a theatrical manager. Otherwise he would not have been able to express in such explicit language just what war is. As you sit at home and read war news, and have visions of Kaiser Bill challenging the world to fight, you may not think that this lord of war, who is now in the role he has long wanted to play, is musing up your theatrical plans for the winter. Well—he is.

Kaiser Bill not only is striving valiantly to muss up the whole of Europe, but through his whole-sale broadside hurling of declarations of war is causing little old Broadway no end of worry.

No one has been shouting during the last couple of years over wonderful successes and the outlook for the coming season which was good until all this outbreak of a calamitous war has given a dull gray dressed-for-battle hue.

In the first place, rehearsals for many shows may be delayed because the principals are held in Europe. Whether they are unable to get a steamer home or haven't the money to pay for a ticket doesn't make any difference. The chances are against their returning in time for rehearsal on the date they were scheduled to begin.

The press agents have jumped on the war, incidentally, as a means of bringing these marooned actors and actresses into print again. If anyone has been overlooked, they were certainly in some such places as Zaywitz and the cables refused to carry the name of the town, the censor fearing the combination might mean something or was intended to be calling the king names.

COMB SAGE TEA IN HAIR TO DARKEN IT

IT'S GRANDMOTHER'S RECIPE TO KEEP HER LOCKS DARK, GLOSSY, THICK

The old time mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur for darkening gray, streaked and faded hair is grandmother's treatment, and folks are again using it to keep their hair good, even color, which is quite sensible, as we are living in an age when a youthful appearance is of the greatest advantage.

Nowadays, though, we don't have the troublesome task of gathering the sage and the mussy mixing at home. All drug stores sell the ready-to-use product called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy" for about 50 cents a bottle. It is very popular, because nobody can discover it has been applied. Simply moisten your comb or a soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, making one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also produces that soft lustre and appearance of abundance which is so attractive; besides, prevents dandruff, itching scalp and falling hair.
